By the end, you will have a clear roadmap to accessing Franklin's transformative messages whenever and wherever you need them most.

Who Is Jentezen Franklin and Why Does His Schedule Matter?

Before diving into the specifics of broadcast times, it is helpful to understand the man behind the pulpit. Jentezen Franklin is a New York Times best-selling author, a sought-after conference speaker, and the lead pastor of Free Chapel, which has locations in Georgia and California. His television ministry, known as Kingdom Connection, has been a staple on Christian and family-friendly networks for years. Franklin is particularly known for his teachings on prayer, fasting, personal breakthrough, and the power of generosity. His messages often combine deep scriptural insights with practical life applications, making him accessible to viewers from all walks of life.

The Jentezen Franklin TV schedule is more than just a list of air times; it represents an opportunity for millions of people to connect with a consistent source of hope and biblical truth. For those in the United States, broadcasts appear on major networks like TBN (Trinity Broadcasting Network), Daystar, and the Hillsong Channel. International viewers also have access through various global partners. Because schedules can change seasonally, during special events, or when networks adjust their programming, staying informed is crucial. A missed broadcast used to mean waiting a full week for a rerun, but today, the schedule is the gateway to a multi-platform experience.

Current Network and Time Slots for the Jentezen Franklin TV Schedule

While specific times can shift, the Jentezen Franklin TV schedule has maintained a relatively stable presence on several key networks. Below is a detailed breakdown of where you can typically find his program Kingdom Connection. Please note that local listings may vary, and it is always wise to check your local cable provider or the network's website for the most accurate information.

Trinity Broadcasting Network (TBN)

TBN remains the most prominent home for Franklin's television ministry. The Jentezen Franklin TV schedule on TBN typically features the program multiple times per week, including weekend and weekday slots. This network reaches nearly every major market in the United States and is also available globally through satellite and online streaming. Common air times on TBN include late morning and early evening slots, which accommodate different viewer schedules. Because TBN also has sister networks like TBN Inspire and TBN HD, you may find additional airings of Kingdom Connection on those channels as well.

Daystar Television Network

Daystar is another major carrier of Franklin's programming. The Jentezen Franklin TV schedule on Daystar often places the show in prime viewing windows, such as mid-morning or early afternoon. Daystar is known for its robust lineup of faith-based teaching programs, and Franklin's messages fit seamlessly into their mission of spreading the Gospel through television. Viewers in rural areas or smaller markets frequently rely on Daystar as a primary source for his ministry.

Hillsong Channel

Owned by TBN, the Hillsong Channel focuses on contemporary Christian content, including worship music and modern teaching. The Jentezen Franklin TV schedule on the Hillsong Channel appeals to a younger demographic or those who prefer a more contemporary presentation style. Air times here may vary, but the channel offers a digital-first approach that syncs well with mobile and smart TV viewing.

Local and Regional Stations

Beyond the national networks, Franklin's program is syndicated on numerous local independent stations, particularly in the Southeast where Free Chapel is headquartered. Some stations run the program early on Sunday mornings, while others place it in a weekday slot. Checking your local listings for "Jentezen Franklin" or "Kingdom Connection" is a reliable way to find these regional broadcasts.

How to Navigate Time Zone Differences in the Jentezen Franklin TV Schedule

One of the most common challenges for viewers is adjusting the Jentezen Franklin TV schedule to their specific time zone. Major networks like TBN and Daystar are often broadcast from the Eastern or Central time zones, meaning a show that airs at 8:00 AM Eastern will be 7:00 AM Central, 6:00 AM Mountain, and only 5:00 AM Pacific. This can be a blessing for early risers on the West Coast or a challenge for those who prefer to watch later in the day.

To simplify this, many viewers adopt a specific strategy. For example, if you live in the Pacific time zone and the Jentezen Franklin TV schedule shows a TBN airing at 10:00 AM Eastern, that would be 7:00 AM Pacific. If that is too early, you can look for a later weekday airing or a weekend repeat that falls at a more convenient hour. Network websites often provide a channel finder tool that adjusts to your local time based on your zip code. This is an excellent resource for eliminating guesswork.

Online and On-Demand Alternatives to the Traditional TV Schedule

For viewers who have cut the cord or who travel frequently, relying on the linear Jentezen Franklin TV schedule may not be practical. Fortunately, the ministry offers several robust digital alternatives that ensure you never miss a message.

The Free Chapel App

The official Free Chapel mobile app is arguably the most convenient way to access Franklin's teachings. The app includes the latest episodes of Kingdom Connection, past sermon series, and special event coverage. Unlike the TV schedule, which is fixed, the app allows you to watch on demand whenever you have a moment. You can stream directly to your phone, tablet, or cast to a smart TV. The app also sends push notifications for new episodes, which effectively replaces the need to remember a TV schedule.

YouTube and Social Media Platforms

The Jentezen Franklin TV schedule goes beyond traditional television through the ministry's official YouTube channel. Here, you can find full episodes, sermon clips, and highlights. Many viewers prefer YouTube because it offers subscription features that alert you when new content is uploaded. Additionally, Facebook and Instagram pages often post short clips from the latest broadcast, which can serve as a prompt to watch the full episode on demand.

Streaming Services and Smart TV Apps

If you have a streaming device like Roku, Apple TV, or Amazon Fire Stick, you can access the TBN app or the Daystar app. These apps include live feeds of the networks, meaning you can watch the Jentezen Franklin TV schedule in real time without a cable subscription. The apps also often have a "catch-up" section where you can watch recent episodes for several days after they air. This is perfect for those who want to adhere to the original broadcast rhythm but may have a scheduling conflict on a particular day.

Special Broadcasts and Event-Based Programming

While the weekly Jentezen Franklin TV schedule is fairly consistent, there are times when special programming changes the lineup. For example, during the annual "50 Days of Fasting and Prayer" campaign, Franklin often produces a series of teachings that air daily rather than weekly. Similarly, major conferences like the "Free Chapel Conference" or "The Awakening" may have extended coverage on partner networks.

During these seasons, the Jentezen Franklin TV schedule may expand to include additional air times or even live broadcasts. Viewers who follow the ministry closely know to expect these changes and plan accordingly. Signing up for the ministry's email newsletter is one of the best ways to stay ahead of these special schedules. The newsletter typically includes a full listing of upcoming broadcasts, including any one-time specials that might not appear on the regular grid.

Why Consistency Matters: The Impact of Regular Viewing

For many people, the Jentezen Franklin TV schedule is not just about convenience; it is about discipline. Having a set time each week to sit down and receive spiritual teaching can create a healthy rhythm in a chaotic world. Franklin's messages often build on each other over weeks or months, covering topics like breakthrough, faith, and the power of generosity. When you watch consistently, you gain a deeper understanding of these themes, as opposed to catching only an isolated episode here and there.

Moreover, regular viewers often report a sense of community. Even though you may be watching from your living room, knowing that thousands of others are tuning in at the same time creates a shared experience. Churches and small groups sometimes use the Jentezen Franklin TV schedule as a starting point for discussion, encouraging members to watch the broadcast during the week and then meet to discuss the points raised.

Creating a Viewing Routine That Works for You

Given the variety of times and platforms available, you can design a routine that fits your lifestyle. Here are a few practical steps to help you integrate the Jentezen Franklin TV schedule into your week:

- Identify your preferred platform: Do you prefer live television, or is on-demand streaming more your pace? Choose the method that reduces friction.
- Set a recurring reminder: Use your phone's calendar or alarms to remind you fifteen minutes before your chosen broadcast time. This helps build the habit.
- Watch with family or friends: If possible, invite others to watch with you. This increases accountability and enriches the experience through discussion.
- Keep a journal nearby: Many viewers find that jotting down notes during the broadcast helps retention and application.

International Viewers and Global Access

The Jentezen Franklin TV schedule is not limited to the United States. Through global network partners, Franklin's teachings reach audiences in Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia, Africa, and parts of Asia and Europe. For international viewers, time zone differences are often the biggest hurdle. A broadcast that airs at 8:00 AM Eastern in the US will be 1:00 PM in London, 10:00 PM in Sydney, and 3:00 PM in Johannesburg.

For international audiences who cannot find the program on local television, the online platforms mentioned earlier become essential. The Free Chapel app and YouTube channel are accessible from anywhere in the world with an internet connection. This democratizes the Jentezen Franklin TV schedule, allowing it to function more as a global resource than a regional broadcast.

Staying Updated with Schedule Changes

Since broadcast schedules are not static, routine check-ins are necessary. The Jentezen Franklin TV schedule can change due to network renewals, holiday programming, or special events. Here are the most reliable ways to stay updated:
