Introduction: Unearthing the Power of the Dragon Priests

In the vast, snow-swept province of Skyrim, few treasures capture the imagination of adventurers quite like the Dragon Priest Masks. These ancient artifacts, once worn by the most powerful servants of the dragons, are scattered across the land hidden within barrows, dungeons, and forgotten crypts. For many players, completing the collection of all eight named masks—and unlocking the secret ninth mask—is a rite of passage. To aid in this epic quest, many turn to a Dragon Priest Masks Locations Map. However, understanding where to look and how to claim these prizes requires more than just a marker on a chart. This guide will walk you through every mask, its resting place, and how a proper map can be your greatest ally in the pursuit of legendary power.

The Dragon Priest Masks are not merely trophies. Each one bestows a unique enchantment, from boosting your magicka regeneration to granting immunity to disease. They represent the pinnacle of the Dragon Priest Masks Locations Mapjourney, demanding both courage and cunning to obtain. Whether you are a fresh-faced explorer or a seasoned Dragonborn, this comprehensive guide will illuminate the path to each mask, ensuring you miss none of these incredible artifacts. Let us embark on this expedition through the ancient holds of Skyrim, where the whispers of the Dragon Priests still echo in the stone.

What Are Dragon Priest Masks?

Before diving into the specifics of a Dragon Priest Masks Locations Map, it is essential to understand what these masks are and why they matter. Dragon Priests were the ruling class of the ancient Nords, serving the dragons during the Merethic Era. They wielded immense magical power and were buried with their masks to protect them in the afterlife. In The Elder Scrolls V: Skyrim, nine unique masks exist, each tied to a specific Dragon Priest. The eight named masks are scattered across the world, while the ninth, Konahrik, is a secret reward for collecting all the others. The Dragon Priest Masks Locations Mapyou encounter in guides or online tools will typically show the exact position of each mask's corresponding dragon priest dungeon.

Each mask offers a distinct benefit. For example, Krosis enhances lockpicking, archery, and alchemy, while Nahkriin boosts magicka and magicka regeneration. Finding them all is not just about completion—it is about unlocking the ultimate power of Konahrik, which grants a powerful healing and damage aura when your health gets low. To achieve this, you must systematically explore the map, visiting locations like Labyrinthian, Volskygge, and High Gate Ruins. A reliable Dragon Priest Masks Locations Mapwill list these places and help you plan your route efficiently, saving hours of aimless wandering.

The Complete Dragon Priest Masks Locations Guide

Below is a detailed breakdown of every mask, its associated dragon priest, and its exact location. Use this information in conjunction with your Dragon Priest Masks Locations Mapfor the best results. Each entry includes lore and practical tips for retrieving the mask.

1. Krosis – The Mask of the Dragon Priest Krosis

Location: Shearpoint, a mountain peak located southeast of Dawnstar and northwest of Whiterun.

Description: Krosis is one of the more accessible masks, but don't be fooled—Shearpoint is patrolled by a powerful dragon and a leveled Draugr Death Overlord. The mask sits in a word wall enclosure at the summit. The Dragon Priest Masks Locations Mapoften marks this spot clearly due to its outdoor setting. Krosis's enchantment improves your Archery, Lockpicking, and Alchemy skills by 20%. It is excellent for thieves and rangers.

Tip: Bring a strong ranged attack or a follower to distract the dragon while you deal with the Draugr. The mask can be grabbed quickly after defeating the priest.

2. Morokei – The Mask of the Dragon Priest Morokei

Location: Labyrinthian, a massive ruin located southeast of Morthal and west of Whiterun. This is also the site of the Mage's College quest "The Staff of Magnus."

Description: Morokei is found deep within Labyrinthian, in a chamber guarded by a powerful Draugr and several magical traps. The mask itself grants 100% Magicka Regeneration, making it indispensable for mages. On your Dragon Priest Masks Locations Map, Labyrinthian is a sprawling complex, so be prepared for a long dungeon crawl. The priest is encountered during the main questline, but you can also explore here independently.

Tip: Use magical resistance potions or the Atronach Stone to counter Morokei's lightning spells. The mask is essential for any spellcaster build.

3. Nahkriin – The Mask of the Dragon Priest Nahkriin

Location: Skuldafn Temple, within the realm of Skuldafn. This area is only accessible during the main questline, specifically the mission "The World-Eater's Eyrie."

Description: Nahkriin is unique because it must be placed on a special pedestal to open a portal to Sovngarde. After the quest, you can retrieve it from the pedestal or the priest's body. The mask boosts Magicka by 50 points and Magicka Regeneration by 50%. Your Dragon Priest Masks Locations Mapwill note that Skuldafn is a one-time-only location—if you miss the mask, you cannot return.

Tip: Do not advance through the portal before looting the mask. This is a common mistake. Equip it before moving on to face Alduin.

4. Volsung – The Mask of the Dragon Priest Volsung

Location: Volskygge, a tomb located directly west of Solitude, near the coast. It is south of the Haafingar region.

Description: Volsung is found on a word wall in a chamber at the end of Volskygge. The priest is a powerful sorcerer who summons Draugr. This mask allows you to breathe underwater and increases your carry weight by 20 points. It is enormously useful for exploration and looting. On any detailed Dragon Priest Masks Locations Map, Volskygge is marked as a quest location, often tied to the "Forbidden Legend" quest.

Tip: The underwater breathing effect is passive—you do not need to activate it. This makes Volsung a favorite for treasure hunters diving into shipwrecks.

5. Otar – The Mask of the Dragon Priest Otar

Location: Ragnvald, a Nordic ruin located southeast of Markarth, near the Karth River.

Description: Otar is guarded by a Dragon Priest and several Draugr in a central chamber. Ragnvald is a multi-level dungeon with a puzzle involving rotating pillars. The mask grants 30% resistance to fire, frost, and shock. This makes it exceptionally good for surviving magical attacks. Your Dragon Priest Masks Locations Mapshould place Ragnvald in the southern region of the Reach.

Tip: The resistance stacks with other magic resistance effects, making Otar a core component of a magic-tank build.

6. Rahgot – The Mask of the Dragon Priest Rahgot

Location: Forelhost, a fortress situated high in the mountains east of Riften, in the Rift region.

Description: Forelhost is a large, vertical dungeon with multiple floors and a challenging boss encounter. Rahgot is found at the summit, guarded by the priest himself. The mask increases your Stamina by 70 points. This is a boon for melee fighters who rely on power attacks and blocking. Check your Dragon Priest Masks Locations Mapfor the winding path up the mountain—it is easy to miss the entrance.

Tip: Bring lockpicks; there are several locked chests containing valuable loot along the way. The priest is resistant to frost, so use fire or shock spells.

7. Hevnoraak – The Mask of the Dragon Priest Hevnoraak

Location: Valthume, a tomb located east of Markarth and southeast of Rorikstead.

Description: Valthume is a relatively short dungeon, but it features a spectral guardian named Valdar who assists you. Hevnoraak is a vampire priest, and his mask grants immunity to disease and poison. This is invaluable when dealing with spiders, wolves, or Draugr with disease-inflicting attacks. On a Dragon Priest Masks Locations Map, Valthume appears as a small ruin in the foothills of the Reach.

Tip: Talk to Valdar for lore and to open the path to the priest. The immunity effect is permanent as long as you wear the mask.

8. Vokun – The Mask of the Dragon Priest Vokun

Location: High Gate Ruins, a tomb located west of Dawnstar, near the coast of the Sea of Ghosts.

Description: Vokun is found in the final chamber of High Gate Ruins, a dungeon with a notable puzzle involving rotating claws. The mask reduces the cost of Illusion, Conjuration, and Alteration spells by 20%. This makes it excellent for hybrid mages. Your Dragon Priest Masks Locations Mapshould mark High Gate Ruins clearly—it is just off the road leading west from Dawnstar.

Tip: The priest is accompanied by several Draugr. Use area-of-effect spells or a follower to manage the crowd.

9. Konahrik – The Secret Mask

Location: Bromjunaar Sanctuary, a hidden chamber beneath Labyrinthian. To access this, you must own the Wooden Mask, which is found inside Labyrinthian itself.

Description: The Wooden Mask is located on a bench in the central chamber of Labyrinthian, near the exit. Wearing it transports you back in time to Bromjunaar Sanctuary, where you can place all eight named masks on a central pedestal. Doing so unlocks Konahrik. This mask has a special power: when your health drops below 15%, it creates a fiery explosion and summons a fire wyrm to aid you. Every Dragon Priest Masks Locations Mapworth its salt will note the location of the Wooden Mask as the key to this final prize.

Tip: Do not sell or store any of the named masks until you have retrieved the Wooden Mask. They are required for the transformation.
