Published: November 20, 2026 | Index ID: #-

Introduction

For decades, the Time Warner Cable Hawaii TV Guide has been a trusted companion for island residents looking to navigate their evening entertainment, catch breaking news, or follow their favorite sports teams. Even as the cable landscape evolves, the need for a clear, easy-to-use television schedule remains essential. Whether you are a long-time subscriber who remembers the printed guide or a newer user exploring the on-screen interface, understanding how to make the most of your TV listings can transform your viewing experience. This article provides a comprehensive look at the Time Warner Cable Hawaii TV Guide, including its features, how to access it, channel highlights, and what the transition to Spectrum means for your daily schedule. We will also explore practical tips and alternative options so you can stay informed and entertained without missing a beat.

Overview of Time Warner Cable Hawaii TV Guide

What Is the Time Warner Cable Hawaii TV Guide?

The Time Warner Cable Hawaii TV Guide is the electronic program guide (EPG) and associated channel listings that help subscribers find what is airing on their cable system in Hawaii. It covers all channels available in the local lineup, from broadcast networks like KHON (Fox), KITV (ABC), KGMB (CBS), and KHNL (NBC) to popular cable channels such as CNN, ESPN, HBO, and Discovery. The guide typically displays program titles, start and end times, brief descriptions, and ratings. It can be accessed through your remote control on your TV screen, via the Spectrum mobile app (formerly TWC TV), or online through the Spectrum website. For many households, the guide is the primary tool to plan their viewing, set DVR recordings, and explore new shows.

Evolution from Time Warner Cable to Spectrum

In 2016, Charter Communications acquired Time Warner Cable and rebranded the service as Spectrum. In Hawaii, the transition happened gradually, but the underlying channel lineup and many of the guide features remained familiar. The Time Warner Cable Hawaii TV Guide name is still used by long-time customers, though officially it is now part of the Spectrum TV Guide. However, the local channel numbers and programming schedules have largely stayed consistent. Understanding this history helps current users know that the guide they used with TWC still works, but with updated features such as improved search, cloud DVR, and a more intuitive interface under the Spectrum brand.

How to Access the TV Guide

On-Screen Guide Interface

The most common way to view the Time Warner Cable Hawaii TV Guide is directly on your television. Using your remote control, press the “Guide” button (often labeled as “Menu” or “Guide”). This brings up a grid of channels and time slots. You can scroll horizontally to see upcoming programs and vertically to browse different channels. The guide updates in real time, so if a live event runs long, the schedule adjusts accordingly. Many users appreciate the ability to quickly see what is on without flipping through each channel. For HD channels, the guide usually marks them with an “HD” icon, which is particularly useful in Hawaii where high-definition programming is popular for sports and nature documentaries.

Online and Mobile Guide

If you prefer planning your TV viewing from your phone, tablet, or computer, the guide is also available online. Spectrum's website (spectrum.net) offers a full TV listings page that mirrors the on-screen guide. You can log in with your Spectrum account, set reminders, and even schedule DVR recordings remotely. The Spectrum TV App (available on iOS and Android) provides a similar experience. Simply download the app, sign in, and you will have the Time Warner Cable Hawaii TV Guide at your fingertips. The app also includes a "Watch Live" feature for many channels, so you can stream certain programs directly on your mobile device while away from home. This flexibility is a major advantage for busy Hawaii residents who commute or travel between islands.

Channel Lineup and Programming Highlights

Local Channels in Hawaii

One of the key components of the Time Warner Cable Hawaii TV Guide is its local channel offerings. Hawaii has a unique broadcasting landscape, with stations that serve all major islands. The guide includes:

- KHON 2 (Fox) – Local news, morning shows, and primetime Fox programming.
- KITV 4 (ABC) – Hawaii news, Good Morning America, and popular ABC dramas.
- KGMB 5 (CBS) – Evening news, sports coverage, and CBS hits.
- KHNL 8 (NBC) – Local news, The Today Show, and NBC prime-time.
- PBS Hawaii – Educational content and local documentaries.
- KAII 7 (Fox affiliate on Maui) and other island-specific feeds.

These channels are often grouped together at the beginning of the guide, usually in the channel 2–10 range, making it easy to find local programming. Many Hawaii residents rely on the guide to catch local weather updates, especially during hurricane season, or to watch high school sports events that are broadcast on local stations.

Popular Cable Channels

The Time Warner Cable Hawaii TV Guide also features a wide array of national cable networks. Some of the most-watched channels include:

- ESPN – College football (especially University of Hawaii games), NFL, and MLB.
- CNN, MSNBC, Fox News – 24/7 news coverage.
- TNT, USA, AMC – Popular series, movies, and reality shows.
- Discovery, History, National Geographic – Documentaries and educational content.
- HBO, Showtime, Starz – Premium movie channels (available with add-on packages).
- Disney Channel, Cartoon Network, Nickelodeon – Children's programming.

The guide lists these channels in numerical order, typically starting in the 20s and 30s for basic cable, then extending into the 100s and 200s for HD versions and premium networks. Subscribers can use the guide's search function to find specific shows or movies across all channels.

Premium Channels and Packages

For those who subscribe to premium channels, the Time Warner Cable Hawaii TV Guide includes dedicated listings for HBO, Cinemax, Showtime, and The Movie Channel. These are often found in the 300–500 range, depending on whether you have standard or HD service. The guide highlights premiere movies, series finales, and special events. You can also view the schedule for individual premium networks in the guide by pressing the "Info" button on a program to see a detailed description, cast, and runtime. Many users find this feature helpful for deciding which movie to record on their DVR.

Features of the TV Guide

Search and Filtering

Modern TV guides, including the one for Time Warner Cable Hawaii, offer powerful search capabilities. You can search by program title, actor, keyword, or even sports team. For example, typing “University of Hawaii basketball” will show all upcoming games on channels like ESPN, Spectrum Sports, or local affiliates. The guide also allows filtering by genre (movies, sports, news, kids) and by HD availability. This saves time compared to scrolling through dozens of channels.

Parental Controls

If you have children, the TV guide integrates with parental control settings. You can lock certain channels or programs based on ratings (e.g., TV-MA, R-rated movies). The guide will display a lock icon next to blocked content. To view or unlock, you need to enter a PIN. This feature is especially useful in Hawaii households where the TV is often in a common area used by the whole family.

DVR Integration

One of the most valuable features linked to the Time Warner Cable Hawaii TV Guide is the ability to schedule DVR recordings. Simply navigate to a future program in the guide, press the “Record” button (or “OK” then select record), and the show will be saved to your DVR. You can record single episodes or entire series. The guide also shows upcoming recordings in a separate list, so you never miss an episode of your favorite Hawaii-based show or national series. The integration works seamlessly, whether you are using the on-screen guide, the app, or the website.

Tips for Maximizing Your TV Guide Experience

Setting Favorites

If you frequently watch the same channels, create a “Favorites” list. On most guides, you can mark channels as favorites by selecting them and pressing a specific button. The guide then allows you to view only your favorite channels, reducing scrolling time. For example, a sports fan might add ESPN, ESPN2, Spectrum Sports, and local stations like KHON. This is a simple yet effective way to tailor the Time Warner Cable Hawaii TV Guide to your habits.

Using the Grid View

The default grid view shows multiple channels and times simultaneously. Experiment with the view options: you can often switch between a one-channel view (showing all programs for that channel over several hours) or a full grid with 10–20 channels. The grid view is best for comparing what is on at the same time across different networks. Remember to press the “Guide” button again to access additional settings like “Now,” “Next,” or “All Day” views.

Transition to Spectrum and What It Means for Customers

As Time Warner Cable officially became Spectrum in Hawaii, customers experienced a gradual change in the guide’s look and functionality. While the core Time Warner Cable Hawaii TV Guide remains recognizable, Spectrum introduced enhanced features like cloud DVR (allowing recordings to be available across devices), a unified search that includes on-demand and streaming content, and a more personalized recommendations engine. If you still see the old TWC branding on your guide interface, you are likely on a legacy system that will eventually migrate. For most users, the transition has been smooth, but it is worth checking your account settings. If you are a new Spectrum subscriber, you will access the same local Hawaii channels and national networks, but with a modernized guide that adapts to your viewing history.

Alternatives to Time Warner Cable TV Guide

Streaming Services

Not everyone relies exclusively on cable. Many Hawaii residents supplement or replace their cable subscription with streaming services that also provide TV guides. Sling TV, YouTube TV, Hulu + Live TV, and DirecTV Stream each offer their own channel lineups and electronic program guides. These services often include local Hawaii channels (depending on your area) and can be more affordable. However, the user experience of a streaming guide may differ; they typically offer the same grid-based layout but are accessed via internet-connected devices. For comparison, you can check the availability of KHON, KGMB, and other local stations on each platform.

Over-the-Air Options

If you cut the cord entirely, you can still get local channels using an antenna. OTA signals in Hawaii are generally strong, especially on Oahu and Maui. Then you can use a free TV guide
